

College-Community Forum

1. The students of Plattsburgh State wish to open a discussion with the townspeople of Plattsburgh. We feel that there is a lack of communication that is separating us, and blocking the needed understanding between us. This is why we are here. We invite you, the people of the community, to join us tonight at 7:00 p.m. in the PSUC Gymnasium for a College-Community Forum. At this Forum members of the community are asked to express their views on the many issues concerning all of us as Americans. Everyone is asked to come. We the students want to discover what the ideas of the people in Plattsburgh are on the important issues of today.
2. The incident at Kent State in Ohio in which four students were killed concerns not only us, as students, but you as parents. Since you are the voters, you have a voice that can be heard. Together we can prevent this from happening again.
3. Not only are we concerned with the deaths at Kent State but we are concerned with the situation in Southeast Asia, namely Cambodia. The Indochinese situation as it stands now could possibly cause a world war. Then, not only we students would be endangered, but everyone would suffer.
